Since opening its gates in the 1930s, Chester State Park has been a popular haven for an array of outdoor activities including hiking, picnicking, boating and fishing. It's also a favorite getaway for residents from surrounding communities in the Midlands region of South Carolina. Located near Chester, midway between Columbia and Charlotte, the park's defining features are its 160-acre lake and picturesque two-mile nature trail, which winds through a scenic pine forest. Guests can also enjoy the community building, three picnic shelters, tent and RV camping and jon boat rentals.
